

LEADERSHIP MAP

We want to each of the team to create their own personal leadership map to help tell the story of the future they want to create, who they want to be in that future and the things that matter to them about the journey. Core elements for your map are set out below, the request is to encourage us to make them quite visual as we want these to be displayed as a way of sharing who we are.

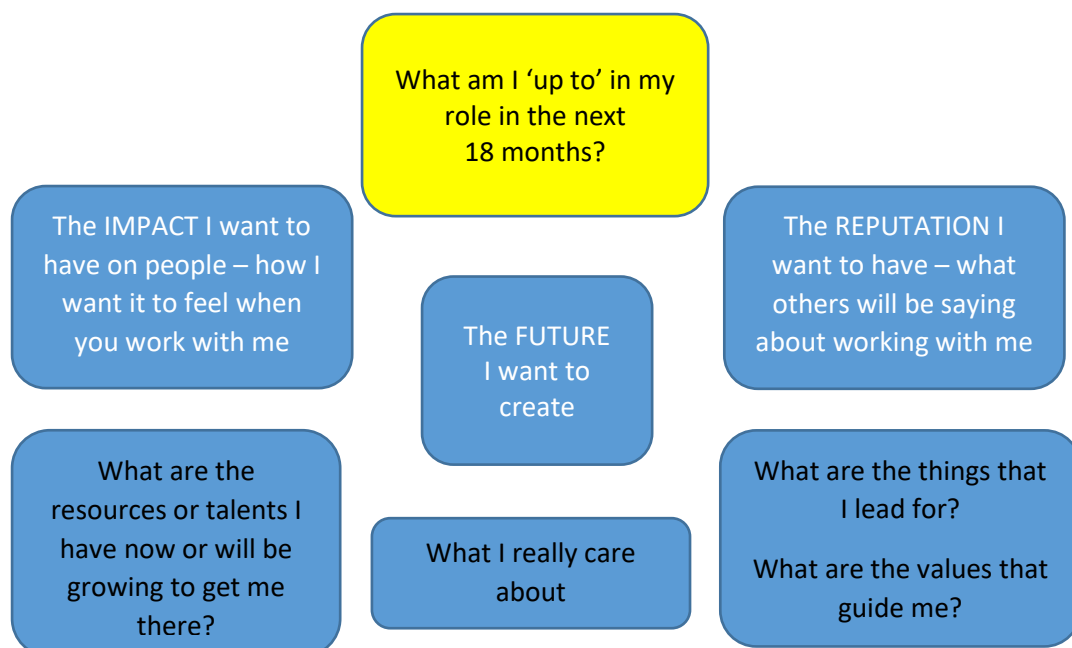

Feel free to be creative. We suggest using an A3 size paper (or stick 4 A4 pieces together) and go for pictures, photos, draw or cut out images as well as words that work for you.

It is YOUR map, so the only person who needs to be happy about it is you. You should be able to look at it and think;

“Yes that really captures where I want to be, who I want to be and the things that really matter in my life”.

Please see this as something enjoyable as well as useful, a labour of love rather than a ‘task that has to be done’. Give yourself some quality time and obviously if you have done one before you can either start with that or with a ‘blank canvas’. The yellow box (below) may well be different if you have done a map before, while much of what is in the other boxes are likely to be the things we take with us wherever we are working.

The elements to include on the map are;

If you have any questions please get in touch. Enjoy the experience of shaping your map around the future you want to create.
